OUR COTTAGE.

An old man and his feeble wife,
Whose hairs were thin and grey,
Were sitting at their cottage door,
One pleasant Autumn day:
The south winds sighed among the pines,
Then softly died away.
They sat and mused upon the past,
Of many years gone by;
While thinking over their youthful days,
Each heaved a heavy sigh,
And tears rolled down their furrowed cheeks,
Like rain-drops from the sky.
They were alone—for one by one
Their children all had left.
Except one boy—their youngest boy—
Of him they were bereft
By handshakes of evil men—
And they alone were left.
And he, upon whose stalwart form,
When both were feeble grown,
Had hoped to lean, while tottering down
Towards that silent bourne,
Had left them in their loneliness—
Yes, left them there to mourn.
He met the wine-god, and he fell,
As others have of yore,
And heeded not his father's words,
As he had done before.
When he, a little child, had played
Around their cottage door.
His mother wept, and down her cheeks,
The tears rolled one by one;
"My boy, my darling boy!" she cried,
"My poor, misguided son,
Oh, would to God that thou hadst died,
When life with thee began.
"Oh, God! have pity on my child,
And guide his steps aright;
And on his darkened path of death,
Oh, pour a flood of light,
And give him back to us again,
A conqueror in the fight." W. H.

THE ASSASSIN'S DEATH.

The Marquis de Pescara, a brilliant soldier in the service of Charles V., was the owner of an ape of almost human intelligence, whose strength was extraordinary. At a word from his master, he would leap savagely upon the person he was playing with a moment before, and with his long and strong arms strangle him to death. The name of this creature was Bambino.

It is related of Francis I., ambitious as was the Emperor of Germany, fearing the result of a battle that was impending between his army and that commanded by Ferdinand d'Avalos (the Marquis), sent an Italian physician, Majorio, an unscrupulous wretch, to administer poison to him, well knowing that once well rid of Pescara, he would have things all his own way—drive back the soldiers of Charles, possibly subdue the Milanais, next all Italy, and thus become emperor of the world.

The dream was brilliant, but the instrument of it contemptible.

Majorio, upon arriving at the headquarters of Pescara, whose confidence, as his physician, he commanded, proposed the taking off of the French King.

D'Avalos knew his visitor's object, and feigned to consider his offer. While seeming to ponder the proposition of the would-be assassin, he made a secret sign to the ape, who had been amicably playing with Majorio.

Suddenly, with a wild scream, he leaped upon the physician's back, and would have strangled him, had not another sign from his master withheld him.

"So, Majorio," cried the marquis, "you have come to me with your distillations, that Francis I., my august master's enemy, may win a bloodless, but unsoldier-like victory! By Our Lady, if you instantly confess not your crime, I shall order Bambino to so squeeze you that your eyes shall drop out of your head."

"My lord marquis," cried the wretch, trembling with terror, but still self-possessed, "I am innocent of any such thought. I pray you order the ape away."

"Nay, sir," cried the marquis, whose voice now became grave, "I have certain information that such was thy message. To prove how unworthy thou art of my confidence, and show how for a few crowns thou wouldst destroy me, I command thee produce the flask thou hast concealed on thy person."

The physician tremblingly obeyed the marquis, and handed him a glass vessel containing a liquid that looked not unlike water.

"It is but a harmless preparation, my lord," said the assassin, "a medicament which I often pre-cribe to those who are in need of my services."

"Oh, indeed!" sneered the soldier. "Let me look at it, Majorio, more closely."

The physician, his eyes beneath his bushy brows burning like coals of fire, and with a malicious twinkle on his face (which, however, the marquis noticed not), did as he was bidden.

"Ah!" said d'Avalos; "and this liquid is harmless. Pray give me its name."

"Aqua-totana, my lord," replied Majorio.

"Then, as it is harmless, I pray you partake of it, ami."

"My lord! oh, my lord!" exclaimed the terrified assassin, as tremblingly he crouched at the feet of the soldier.

"Drink!" cried d'Avalos fiercely; "drink, or by the mother of God, I will have thy vile carcass roasted slowly to death at the first camp fire we come to!"

The wretch, his face ghastly pale, took the phial in his trembling hands, and while pretending to raise it to his lips, let it fall upon the pavement, where it was broken into fragments.

D'Avalos, now beside himself with rage, made a sign to the ape, who instantly jumped upon the poisoner's shoulders, and with a savage cry, passed his arms around his neck, gradually but surely choking him to death.

For a few moments the poisoner vainly struggled with the savage beast, but at each beat of the pulse his efforts became feebler and feebler. For a second the ape relaxed his hold, long enough for the wretched man to crave pardon, and then the monster again grappled with him. Majorio staggered forward, and with his eyes forced out of their sockets, he fell a corpse on the floor.

"Well done, Bambino!" shouted the soldier, with a laugh of scorn, as he looked at the yet quivering body; "henceforth in my household thou shalt hold the office of executioner. What ho, there!" he added, with a shout to his posse in the ante-room, who instantly presented themselves, "remove that carcass hence; bury it out of sight, but I charge you let not book be read nor bell be rung at its earthing. Begone! Would it were the body of Francis the King!"

WHAT THE COUNTY PRESS HAS TO CONTEND WITH.—The excessive competition of half a dozen newspapers struggling for existence wherever there is room for one, has demoralized editors and the public alike. If the editor makes a stand for what is his due, recourse is had to rivals ready to undervalue him by whatever means. If he demands proper payment for his advertising, it is taken to some one who will do it cheaper, and he is left with none; if he declines to have his duties interrupted by every gossiping lounge, it is attributed to hauteur, and his popularity and that of his journal is destroyed; if he demand proper payment it is taken in dudgeon; if he pursues an independent course in any local or general issue, there is a defection among his readers to a sheet of less principle and more ready of compliance; if he refuses to lend his own to venal purposes, a hundred expedients can be employed to break it down or exalt its rival. This state of things has tended inevitably to the deterioration of the county press, and of the class of men who are willing to work upon it.—County.

A WILD WOMAN IN THE WELCH MOUNTAINS.—An English paper says a wild woman has been carousing in the mountains of Carnarvonshire and Merionethshire for the last few years. Twice has she been captured, and once, at least, has in return captured a stray child on the hills. At last she has been run down. She was seen near Llanfairfechan in July, and a large party banded together to chase her, or rather they promised to do so, but when the hour of meeting came, only police constable A I came up to the scratch, and he went in pursuit alone. After an unsuccessful search over places the very names of which would break the jaw of an Englishman to pronounce, the uncivilized lady was discovered asleep on a path leading from Rhiwian to Caerlaid. The valiant officer captured her, and at 2 o'clock on Friday morning lodged her in the lock-up. She turns out to be an Irishwoman who thinks she has been excommunicated by the Pope and ordered to lead a solitary mountain life for ten years. The next month of that life will be spent in Carnarvon jail.

A TEXAS paper says there are now several thousand beehives in Williamson county in that State, full, fat and fine, and that the same may be said of almost every county. It says that perhaps a million of fat beehives could be removed from that State without endangering the supply for home consumption, and to the great benefit of the range, which is beginning to be overstocked in many counties. The increase exceeds the consumption everywhere.

Copy of the Report of the Committee of Awards at the Fair of the AMERICAN INSTITUTE
NEW YORK, 1853.
To the FLORENCE SEWING MACHINE CO. for the Best Family Sewing Machine, HIGHEST PREMIUM! Gold MEDAL!

REASONS:
1st.—Its simplicity and great range of work.
2d.—The reversible Feed Motion.
3d.—The perfect finish and substantial manner in which the Machine is made.
4th.—The rapidity of its working and the quality of the work done.
5th.—The self-adjusting Tension.

The Florence received the first and highest premium at the State Fair of California, the only Fair on the Pacific coast at which any two double tread Sewing Machines were exhibited in competition in 1853.
The Florence received the only premium awarded, by the Mechanics Institute of San Francisco, in 1861 and 1863, to any Sewing Machine, Sewing Machine Co., or Agent. The claim of a competitor to a medal in any foundation was refused.

Wherever the Florence has been brought in competition with other Sewing Machines, it has always been declared the best. It is the most simple, the most substantial, the most elegant, and its use is easily learned. Every Machine sold is guaranteed in the full sense of the word.

A CARD FROM THE AMERICAN WATCH COMPANY, of Waltham, Mass.

This Company beg leave to inform the public that they commenced operations in 1853, and their factory now covers four acres of ground, and has cost more than a million dollars, and employs over 700 operatives. They produce 75,000 Watches a year, and make and sell not less than one-half of all the watches sold in the United States.

The difference between their manufacture and the European, is briefly this: European are made almost entirely by hand, and the result is of necessity a lack of that uniformity, which is indispensable to correct time-keeping. Both the eye and the hand of the most skillful operative must vary. But it is a fact that, except watches of the higher grade, are the product of the cheapest labor of Switzerland and the result is the worthless Acres, Leptines and so-called Patent Levers—which soon cost more in attempted repairs, than their original cost. Common workmen, boys and women, buy the rough separate parts of these watches from various factories, polish and put them together, and take to the nearest watch merchant, who stamps and engraves them with any name or brand that may be ordered.

How American Watches are made.
The American Waltham Watch is made by no such uncertain process—and by no such incompetent workmen. All the Company's operations from the reception of the raw materials to the completion of the watch, are carried on under one roof, and under one skillful and competent direction. But the great distinguishing feature of their watches, is the fact that their several parts are all made by the finest, the most perfect and delicate machinery ever brought to the aid of human industry. Every one of the more than a hundred parts of every watch is made by a machine—that infallibly reproduces every succeeding part with the most invariable accuracy. It was only necessary to make one perfect watch of any particular style and then to adjust the hundred machines necessary to reproduce every part of that watch, and it follows that succeeding watches must be like it.

The Company respectfully submit their watches on their merits only. They claim to make

A Better Article for the Money
by their improved mechanical processes than can be made under the old fashioned handicraft system. They manufacture watches of every grade, from a good, low priced and substantial article, in solid silver hunting cases, to the finest chronometer, and also ladies' watches in plain gold or the finest enamel and jeweled cases; but the indispensable requisite of all their watches is that they shall be GOOD TIMEKEEPERS. It should be remembered that, except their single lowest grade named the "Home Watch Company, Boston," ALL Watches made by them

ARE FULLY WARRANTED
by a special certificate, and this warrant is good at all times against the Company or its agents.

LOPEZ ASSASSINATED.—A letter gives the following details of the assassination of Lopez, who betrayed Maximilian: "I arrived here to-day, and learned the startling news of the assassination of the traitor Lopez. The particulars of the assassination are as follows: Lopez was staying at a hotel in Puebla, where his wife spurned him from her presence. Early one morning a Mexican arrived and familiarized himself with an hostler in a livery stable adjoining the hotel. General Miguel Lopez was inquired for, but not being in, the stranger was told that the General would be at dinner. Before the dinner hour Lopez returned, and was pointed out to the stranger, who made a special note of his man. When dinner was called, Lopez and his assassin occupied opposite seats at the table. After some minutes, during which time the stranger called for and drank a glass of wine, he deliberately rose, drew a concealed knife, sprang upon Lopez and stabbed him nine times. The stranger then took his hat, and as he started to leave said: 'This is the way all traitors should be paid.' No one interfered or prevented the assassin from leaving."

VERY TRUE.—The Sacramento Union says: "By means unknown to us, the interior papers were brought to support the Union ticket." Yes, by patriotic principles—things entirely unknown to the Union.

A HEAVY FALL.—The Austin Revue, of August 28th, relates the following:

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon a boy named John Edwards, eleven years of age, fell to the bottom of the shaft of the South American mine, a depth of 186 feet. Edwards and another boy were playing near the mouth of the shaft, when by some accident he was precipitated to the bottom. The father of young Edwards was in the shaft when he fell; he heard an unusual noise and stepped aside to avoid possible danger; and as something fell into the water he came forward and picked up his own son. The poor little fellow was hoisted to the surface, bruised and mangled, and a messenger was dispatched for a surgeon. As soon as Dr. Wixom arrived the boy's injuries were examined. His head had received severe contusions; the right ear was torn entirely off, and was hanging by a mere ligament; two of his ribs were broken from the spine, and his right thigh was broken and crushed. He had fallen on his back which was severely lacerated and black as ink. The boy was alive, and soon after the doctor commenced his manipulations he spoke in the consciousness of pain. This morning his condition was encouraging and there is a possibility that he will recover from the injuries received in his tremendous fall.

IT KILLS FOR HAUGHT, NOT KEYSER.—In true Bowery style, throwing back its hat, sticking out its chin and clenching its teeth, the Sacramento Union says: "If you don't believe I'm a butcher smell of my boots!"

The patter of little feet and the patter of summer rain are among the sweetest music in the world of nature.

REDINGTON & CO.

ESSENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER.

THIS valuable preparation, contain- ing in a highly concentrated form all the properties of the Jamaica Ginger, has become one of the most popular domestic remedies for all diseases of the stomach and digestive organs.

As a tonic it will be found invaluable to a person recovering from debility, whether produced by fever or otherwise, for whilst it imparts to the system all the glow and vigor that can be produced by wine or brandy, it is entirely free from the reactionary effects that follow the use of spirits of any kind.

It is also an excellent remedy for females who suffer from difficult menstruation, giving almost immediate relief to the spasms that so frequently accompany that period.

It gives immediate relief to Nausea, caused by the riding in a railroad car, or by sea-sickness, or other causes. It is also valuable as an external application for Gout, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, etc.

REDINGTON & CO., SOLE AGENTS for the PACIFIC COAST.

It is not surprising that you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by the surprising curative powers of
